Leopard Men Trek Provides Thrills

(Advance Short)

More thrilling even than his first close-up combat with an African lion or the hundred and one other dramatic experiences encountered in a thrill-packed career of exploration in the far corners of the globe, Dr. Paul L. Hoefler, declares that his story of "Leopard Men of Africa" was "the toughest to get" of them all. It comes to the _____ Theatre on _____

The British Government, now harried by war, is credited by Dr. Hoefler with having first blasted out the secrets of the fantastic leopard men. An expedition of government police all but wiped them out and ended, for the time being, a reign of terror more deadly even than the menace of the wild beasts of the jungle and the recurring locust plagues that sweep Central and Eastern Africa.

Dr. P. L. Hoefler Has Amazing List Of Exploration "Firsts"

(Advance Feature)

The first man to film color and sound in the African jungles and to kill a lion in close up camera action with a big-game rifle, Dr. Paul L. Hoefler has chalked up an extraordinary list of "firsts," the dramatic record of which has given him a place in the forefront of famous explorers.

Producer of the memorable "Africa Speaks," Dr. Hoefler's new jungle thriller "Leopard Men of Africa" comes to the _____ Theatre on _____

Killer-Chief

Trekking deep in the jungles of Kenya Dr. Hoefler has brought back to civilization the most important of all his "firsts" in the story of the monstrous leopard men, the fantastic society of natives, half-brute, half-human, who dive from trees to kill while wearing leopard skins and sharp steel claws fastened by leather bindings to their hands. These weird creatures are shown in the production for the first time on the screen.

Other outstanding "firsts" recorded by Dr. Hoefler through a thrill-packed career are as follows: First explorer to drive a motor vehicle from Capetown to Portuguese Angola; first to cross Central Equatorial Africa from one ocean to the other; first to photograph a plague of "bombing" locusts; first to photograph a wild African lion at close quarters; first to record sound in Africa; first to film the big-lipped or "duck-billed" women, (Ubangi); first to photograph color in Africa; first to photograph the Impalla in slow motion.

Steely-eyed, unrelenting, this head-man of the Congo's Murder, Inc. is Dictator of an Empire of Horrors whose startling reign of terror is shown for the first time on any screen in "Leopard Men of Africa" now at the _____ Theatre.
